New York author/plenary advisor William Blackburn graduated from college in 2003 and sums up his persona in his brief (and not too informative bio): “He does odd jobs and lives a minimalist lifestyle to support himself. Instead of complaining about how unfair the world is, he takes action and writes self-help books. He is very passionate about writing, arts and crafts, traveling, and has always felt the need to learn and teach others. William dedicates his free time to writing these books and traveling the world. His other books are Tiny Houses, How To Earn Money Fast, Crochet, Crochet Jewelry, Perennial Vegetables, Tea Cleanse, and now Meal Prep. All of William’s short self help books are practical – he gets right down to his topic at hand and doesn’t waste words but instead gives succinct instruction on how to follow the concept he is supporting. “If you are ready to commit to fit, look no further. In the following chapters, we will be going over some concepts that will help you eat right to lose weight. One of the main reasons people don’t stick to their diet is because it gets boring. We have such a diverse pallet, who would be satisfied with eating chicken and rice all of the time? In the following chapters, we will be providing you with many delicious recipes. From breakfast cookies to jar burritos, all while being healthy. The true key to sticking with a healthy diet is to make it diverse and to be happy with what you are putting into your mouth. Losing weight should never be a miserable process. Remember that in the long run, you are making these choices to be healthier and happier. However, remember that life is about the journey, not the destination.
